

Do You Say “Thank You”

Judge Rembert Rembert

When the clerk in the store told...

Told you where the item was...

The item you needed...

Did you say “Thank You”...

When the employee stopped...

Stopped stocking the shelves...

Stopped to help you...

He was tall and could reach...

Reach that item you needed...

The item that was on the top shelf...

Did you say “Thank You”...

How about the employee who picked up...

Picked up the item you dropped...

Handed it to you and smiled...

Did you say “Thank You”...

Did you take the time...

The time to tell the store manager...

Tell them about their good employee...

Thank the manager for their employee...

Most Americans today know...

Know that major companies have...

Have websites...

Websites where you can comment...

Where you can say “Thank You”...

Most receipts have the WWW address...

They want to know...

They care about good employees...

Most people find that address...

Find it when they want to complain...

“Thank You” is very important...

In 2024 they are just as important...

Important as ever before...

Lots a stores are short handed...

If those employees did not need...

Need to work...

They would not be there...

Saying “Thank you” may make you...

Make you feel good...

Actually you may be that person...

Person who always says “Thank You”...

You already know it is good...

Good for everybody...

---More About Judge Rembert: WWII made Judge an only child when her half-brother was killed in the war. She lived in a tiny town in South Carolina until she was eight and her Mother went to work. She was sent to a boarding school in Belmont, N.C. From that time on she has lived back and forth in the two Carolinas. They are both home. She was born dyslexic and did not know what the problem was or that it had a name until she was about 45. She was unable to spell so she never put words on paper until she was 65 and had a computer with spell check. She comes from a long line of story tellers and a Mother that taught her much by telling stories. Stories about people and how they faced life and how they dealt with problems. If you read what she writes you may hear her Mother and her Grandmother talking to her. She is thrilled to know that anyone reads her words and finds them interesting. Oh, she is 82 now and makes her home in Aiken, S.C.
