Editor , Thomas Lark

LINCOLNTON--The Lincoln Herald's own Kirk Herbertson attended President Donald Trump's rally on Wednesday.

The big event was held at the old Charlotte Coliseum and attracted thousands of people in a massive, sold-out show of support. And Herbertson was there, one of many photographers covering the rally. A longtime photojournalist for The Herald, the Lincolnton-based Herbertson is well known for his work. He has photographed and covered countless local events, large and small, over the past 12 years.

Despite the high heat, the turn-out was amazing. Herbertson's pictures revealed no vacant seats at all in the standing-room-only arena, with even more Trump supporters thronging outside.

"The sweat was worth it!" Herbertson cheerily observed, regarding covering the event.
